POLICY ON PROHIBITED RELATIONSHIPS WITH STUDENTS

Statement of Principles

The George Washington University is committed to maintaining a safe, positive, and respectful environment where students, faculty, and staff study, learn, and work without concern that potentially exploitative or coercive sexual relationships may damage the associations essential to our educational mission, create real or perceived conflicts of interest, or jeopardize the fair treatment of members of our community.

The pedagogical, coaching, mentoring, and advising relationships among faculty, administrators, and students are central to the mission and purpose of the university. Faculty members, administrators, coaches, and certain other staff have important, multi-faceted, and influential roles with students. They serve as intellectual guides, role models, supervisors, mentors, educators and advisors for our students. Because the integrity of these relationships must be maintained and fostered for the benefit of the participants and third persons, the university expects these individuals to conduct themselves in a manner that does not potentially interfere with those relationships.

The relationships identified in this policy invariably involve individuals occupying positions of asymmetrical power and authority. That asymmetry has the potential to compromise the integrity of the educational process and creates an inherent risk of exploitative or coercive sexual and amorous relationships. The existence of a relationship in this context, even where consensual, may also create the perception of favoritism or preferential treatment that damages the integrity of the supervision and evaluation provided and may harm third parties. These types of relationships may also raise concerns that the person in authority has violated standards of professional conduct, raise the potential for conflicts of interest or bias, and undermine the respectful and productive educational and supervisory affiliations between individuals, and may lead to actual or perceived sexual harassment, discrimination, and other behavior harmful to members of our community.

Therefore, this policy prohibits, with few exceptions as identified in this policy:
• All sexual or amorous relationships between undergraduate students at the university and faculty, administrators, coaches, or certain other individuals (including staff), as identified in this policy.
• Sexual or amorous relationships between graduate students at the university and faculty, administrators, or certain other individuals (including staff), as identified in this policy, who have or may have in the future an instructional, evaluative or supervisory responsibility over the graduate student while the graduate student is at the university.

At the same time, the university recognizes that individuals otherwise covered by this policy may have pre-existing relationships. In such cases, the policy instructs the persons in the relationship with greater power or authority within the university to: 1) remove themselves from any supervisory, evaluative, advisory or other pedagogical role, and 2) disclose the relationship to the dean or highest authority in their school or division, who will take reasonable and appropriate steps to remediate the potential conflict of interest, as approved by the Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs or designee, and in consultation with other university staff as appropriate.

Members of the university community with questions or concerns about this policy and their obligations to follow it are encouraged to discuss the issues with staff in the Office of the Vice Provost for Diversity, Equity and Community Engagement.

The Policy

1. For purposes of this policy, a “teacher” is someone who teaches, educates, supervises, or evaluates students and includes but is not limited to regular, part time, specialized, or visiting faculty. It includes faculty who may not be teaching during a particular semester or academic year but who serve as an academic administrator, as well as faculty who are on sabbatical or on some other form of leave. It also includes individuals who are graders, as well as graduate assistants who teach, supervise or evaluate students in connection with their academic endeavors.

2. For purposes of this policy, “staff” includes university employees, administrators, contractors, volunteers, and others who coach, mentor, counsel, advise, employ, supervise, manage, or evaluate students for or on behalf of the university. For purposes of this policy, staff does not include undergraduate student employees and who are primarily students.

3. For purposes of this policy, “amorous” means showing, expressing, or relating to sexual interest, intimacy or relations, irrespective of whether such conduct is welcome.

4. For purposes of this policy, an “undergraduate student” is someone who has not previously earned an undergraduate degree. Students who are pursuing a second or later degree are considered graduate students for purposes of this policy. Students with unclear registration status or a registration status other than as a graduate or undergraduate student, and graduate students who are members of a university athletics team based on NCAA eligibility rules, are considered undergraduates for purposes of this policy.

5. For purposes of this policy, relationships that would otherwise be prohibited under this policy but that pre-date one or both parties’ affiliation with the university may continue, provided that the relationship is promptly disclosed and an approved plan is implemented in accordance with Article III of this policy.

Article I
Prohibited Relationships With Undergraduate Students

No teacher (except for graders and graduate assistants, as provided below), administrator, or staff may have a sexual or amorous relationship with any undergraduate student at the university. No grader or graduate assistant may have a sexual or amorous relationship with any undergraduate student at the university who is enrolled in a course in the department in which the grader or graduate assistant is performing his or her duties.

No teacher, administrator, or staff may teach, instruct, evaluate, recommend (or serve as a reference for), supervise, or manage an undergraduate student with whom they have previously had a sexual or amorous relationship.

Article II
Prohibited Relationships With Graduate Students

No teacher, administrator, or staff may have a sexual or amorous relationship with a graduate student in their department or program. Further, no teacher, administrator, or staff may have a sexual or amorous relationship with a graduate student over whom they have, or likely will have a future instructional, evaluative, supervisory, or managerial relationship while the graduate student is matriculating at the university, including one who may be called upon to formally or informally provide a recommendation (or serve as a reference) for future employment or fellowship, research or other educational positions.

No teacher, administrator, or staff may teach, instruct, evaluate, recommend, supervise, or manage a graduate student with whom they have or previously had a sexual or amorous relationship.
Article III
Pre-Existing Relationships

Should a pre-existing sexual or amorous relationship exist, that pre-dates one or both parties’ affiliation with the university and that otherwise would be prohibited under this policy, the person in the position of greater authority within the university shall: 1) recuse themselves from the institutional relationship with the person in the position of lesser authority in a manner that results in the least harm to that person; and 2) inform their dean, or highest authority in their school or division1, of the relationship, who will, as approved by the Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs or designee, and in consultation with other university staff as appropriate, ensure that the recusal has occurred, monitor continued recusal and implement appropriate remedial measures to minimize the conflict of interest or appearance thereof. These efforts shall be documented, and centrally maintained by the Office of the Vice Provost for Faculty Affairs.

Article IV
Violations

Violation of Article I or II of this Policy by the person in the position of greater authority and/or the failure to recuse or to inform the dean or highest authority in the school or division in a timely fashion required in Article III may subject the violator to disciplinary and/or corrective action. The university may take interim steps to manage or address the violation prior to taking disciplinary action, including but not limited to recusal of the person in the position of greater authority. The disciplinary and/or corrective action will depend on the particular circumstances of the violation, including but not limited to whether the person in the position of greater authority promptly reported the relationship prohibited under this policy; and may include additional training, counseling, a written warning, suspension (including suspension of relevant responsibilities such as teaching or advising), or termination of employment.

Nothing in this policy prohibits a member of the university community from bringing a complaint under the university Sexual and Gender-Based Harassment and Interpersonal Violence Policy, if, for example, the individual believes that the sexual or amorous relationship was not welcome or consensual. Further, in cases where there is a finding under the Sexual and Gender-Based Harassment and Interpersonal Violence Policy that a relationship was welcome or consensual, an investigation and 1 If the person in the position of greater authority is the dean of a school, then the dean will inform the Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs. If the person in the position of greater authority is the Provost, the Provost will inform the President. If the person in the position of greater authority is the President, the President will inform the Chair of the Board of Trustees.

appropriate action may still be taken for violations of this policy.
